We have progressed to an age where the role of the employee and the office are significantly evolving. Driven by new corporate values, a rapidly changing workforce and innovative technology, the modern workplace is as much about an experiential environment as it is about productivity. SCDF's Workplace of the Future Event features leading workplace strategy experts, business leaders, and developers to discuss the changing nature of the office environment, new workplace innovations, and how to best prepare for the next generation of employees to create enjoyable, productive, and thriving workplace environments.
